

Power to the people

Kiewit is a Fortune 500 company and one of the largest construction, mining, and engineering firms in the world. Their work is fast-paced, requiring constant collaboration. When renovating their 60,000 square foot office, they had two goals. One, ensure all employees have the space and tools to do their work. Two, give their teams a forward-thinking workplace that felt like home. The DIRTT partner designed a space jam-packed with informal collaboration areas, open-use meeting rooms, private offices, and hoteling space. Regardless of employee work style, Kiewit provides them an environment to get the job done. But there's balance too. Resimercial coffee stations, an open-concept games room and a gourmet kitchen mean Kiewit employees are get the most out of being at work.
